Introduction

Language is a tool that can be used to communicate, convey an idea and person's feelings in spoken or written form. In the delivery process, the use of language style becomes one of the choices where the choice of words taken directly or indirectly can reflect the personality of the person. The use of language is something that is very important in literary works, because various literary works are formed from the use of creative and good language by writers. Language serves as a means to convey and describe one's feelings. Through language one can process ideas and thoughts that are in the heart and then expressed, and realized into something interesting and beautiful, such as: poetry, novels, and songs.

The style of language expresses feelings and ideas with a distinctive language according to the personality, character, and creativity of the author to achieve the effect of beauty. The three elements of the beauty effect are the aesthetic effect (style), the poetic effect, and the effect of creating meaning. The aesthetic element is characterized by the peculiarities of 2 choice of words, sentence structure, forms of figurative language, use of cohesion, etc. Abdullah & A, Salman (2018). According to Carlyle in Pradopo (2019) expressed the opinion that poetry is musical thought. When creating poetry, the poet thinks of a melodic sound like music in his poem, the words are arranged in such a way that the dominant sound arises is a series of melodic sounds such as music. In its development, the language of poetry combined with the art of music is called song lyrics. According to Windiati & Febriati (2021), personification is a style of language that compares something that is not human but the poet visualizes it being like a human, in other words personification is a style of language that describes an inanimate thing as if it has human characteristics.

According to Perrine (1974), a figure of speech is any way of saying something other than the ordinary way. Figures of speech based on Perrine's theories are metaphor, simile, personification, apostrophe, synecdoche, metonymy, understatement, symbol, allegory, paradox, hyperbole and verbal irony. Perrine (1974: 616) says that there are four reasons that Figurative Language often provides a more effective means of saying what we means than does direct statement. The following are four reasons of figurative language: first, figurative language afford people to develop their imagination (Widodo et al., 2022). People in the world have different imagination when they express their ideas or feelings. Second, figurative language are a way of bringing additional imagery into verse, of making the abstract concrete, of making poetry more sensuous. According to Kosasih (2017) figurative language which is used to create a certain impression for the listener or the reader. Figurative language is translated simply into figurative expressions or styles language. According to Waluyo (1991:83) figurative language is a language which poets use to say things in an unusual way did not directly reveal the meaning. Figurative language is basically used by literatito acquire and create imagery. The presence of figurative speech causes the work literature attracts attention, gives rise to clarity of wishful thinking
